

The members of the Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties (APSCUF) stand beside our colleagues in California as they fight against the chancellor's misplaced priorities for the California State University system. The chancellor wants to increase the salaries of administrators on the backs of students, who have already experienced skyrocketing, record-breaking tuition and fees over the past several years. APSCUF joins the California Faculty Association (CFA) in calling for a return to focus on educational quality and affordability for students, demonstrated by a shift in resources back to instructional needs and increased investment in the mission of the state system.

We also support the CFA in their attempt to move the chancellor to abide by the collective bargaining agreement signed in 2007 and the fact-finding determination this year. The faculty and coaches of APSCUF support the one-day strike at the East Bay and Dominguez Hills campuses because students deserve to benefit from an affordable, high-quality education.
