

Budget times are tough...

Unless you're with Chancellor Reed and part of the wealthiest 1% of CSU executives. Here's a by-the-numbers look:

$29,500

Raise given to Mildred García – formerly the campus president at CSU Dominguez Hills – for leaping from Dominguez Hills to Cal State Fullerton.

$27,605

Raise Leroy Morishita will get simply for having the “interim” before his title removed. He had previously served as the interim president at CSU East Bay at a salary of $276,055 annually.

$57,105

Combined raises given to García and Morishita.

$324,500

García's new salary as president at CSU Fullerton. This doesn't include the free housing she will be provided in the university-owned presidential residence or her $12,000 annual car allowance.

$303,660

Salary Leroy Morishita's will receive as President at CSU East Bay. This doesn't include his $60,000 annual housing allowance or $12,000 annual car allowance.

7.1 million

Number of sheets of copier paper that could be bought to administer exams for students so the professors are not forced to offer online exams.

($4 per ream of paper = 14,276 reams x 500 pages per ream)

$1,074

Raise García will get for each of the 21 miles she will have to travel down highway 91 to get from Dominguez Hills to Fullerton.

550

Number of students who could get one course closer to graduation if the money for raises had been spent on class sections. ($5000 per course = 11 courses x 50 students per course)

Contrast that to Reed's approach to contract negotiations with faculty...

Take Backs

The Chancellor has brought nothing to the bargaining table but “take backs.” His proposals attack faculty working conditions and undermine our efforts to provide a quality education for CSU students.

Class Size

In his proposals, Reed refuses to limit the huge increases in workload that faculty have experienced, particularly through increased class sizes.

Million Dollar Consultants

The Chancellor has spent $6,586,700 on outside labor consultants since 2006, even though the CSU has its own highly-paid & well-staffed labor relations division.

The time has come to say enough is enough. Join CFA in the fight for a fair contract for faculty and quality education for our students!
