

FACT SHEET:

THE CSU IS NOT BROKE, BUT MANAGEMENT WANTS TO BREAK YOU

FACT: Chancellor Reed expects the CSU to have $4.8 billion next year in spite of state funding cuts.

FACT: This is 5% more ($241 million) than the CSU budget for this year.

FACT: This is 14% more ($599 million) more than the CSU had in 2009/10 (when the faculty agreed to take a pay cut for that year).

*assumes Gov's revenue initiative passes in November; source CSU Budget Memoranda FACT: Chancellor Reed has rejected CFA proposals that have no cost (e.g. academic freedom) and proposals that would have cost-savings (e.g. FERP eligibility for tenured counselor faculty).

FACT: This contract fight is not about money and the CSU is not broke. It is the Chancellor's attempt to radically alter the teaching profession at the CSU and to weaken CFA's ability to represent the faculty.

FACT: Chancellor Reed thinks the faculty will not fight for a good contract and will not vote to go on strike.

FACT: The Chancellor will pay his top labor consultant more than $8,400 to meet with CFA for two days next week.

CFA STRIKE AUTHORIZATION VOTE ENDS SOON! MAKE SURE YOUR VOTE COUNTS.

Vote Online or On Campus (but check to see if on campus voting is still going on at your campus!)

Learn more @ www.calfac.org/strikevote411