Dear Colleagues,

This academic year will still look quite different than most as the COVID-19 pandemic continues to affect class offerings and in-person learning opportunities on our campuses. CFA leaders have been working diligently and will continue to do so to protect faculty health, safety, and rights guaranteed under the Collective Bargaining Agreement.

With CFA, faculty has a powerful voice to shape working conditions. Our members and activists advocated for and helped secure a strong budget for the CSU this year. The budget restores last year’s $299.1 million budget cuts, increases base funding by 5 percent, increases student mental health services, expands affordable student housing, and adds needed funding for Ethnic Studies curriculum.

Our work continues.

As we witnessed throughout the pandemic, our workload increased without proper compensation, the digital divide truly affected our faculty and students, and inequality persists within our higher education system.

Our efforts to create a more inclusive and equitable work environment continues through our ongoing bargaining campaign. Our member leaders are actively negotiating a successor contract focused on Rights, Respect, and Justice.

We are pursuing an expansion of rights in our new contract that will benefit all faculty for years to come.

Respect for faculty comes with our proposed salary increase proposal. We want to reimagine life at the CSU and reverse the trend of years of institutional and structural racism and heteropatriarchy.

Much of the academic year will be different, with in-person, virtual, and hybrid teaching across the system. As always, our success in standing up for quality education depends on the strength of our membership.

Through our advocacy, we achieved a strong budget for the CSU system. Through our advocacy, we can achieve our new contract.

Together, we are stronger.

In Solidarity,
Charles Toombs, CFA President
Professor, San Diego State University
